“Lone Wolf” an aggressive training course designed to prepare officers to effectively respond alone, and in pairs to an Active Gunman.

Statistically, a life is taken every 15 seconds once an active gunman begins a shooting rampage. Historically, gunmen do not attempt to escape once the shooting begins, but either give up or take their own lives once confronted by authorities. It is imperative that law enforcement officers act quickly to stop the loss of lives. In most cases, this may mean doing it alone until additional officers arrive.

The “Lone Wolf” will cover the theories behind life preservation and the one/two officer response to an active gunman. Our Simunition®-based scenarios will teach students how to apply those theories correctly. Training will emphasize successfully engaging the threat, and how to stop the loss of life.

At the culmination of the course, students will walk away with an understanding of the dynamics of an active gunman and the skills necessary to increase the chances of life preservation.
